

OCTOBER BREAKS
YEAR'S RECORDMonth's Building Permits
Total Larger Than Last July

NEARLY $2,000,000

Two Large Permits Saturday
Sent Total Skyrocketing to $1,880,778.50

As a building month, October is slipping with the $2,000,000 mark. It slipped up behind July, peaked a moment, and then shot past with total permits representing the expenditure of $1,880,778.50 for construction work. The July total, which held this year's monthly record up to Saturday, was $1,636,000. Two large permits Saturday hiked the October total to the 1922 record-breaker. One was the city water department for a concrete high-pressure reservoir north of the city on the extension of Elwood avenue, to cost $150,000. The other was for a three-story brick apartment house at 802 South Chesapeake, to be built by Mrs. Mary J. Galt.

October already is one of the best building months in Tulsa's history. If the total permits reach $2,000,000, as Building Inspector Frank C. Walter confidently expects, it will share in the greatest honors.

What Monday and Tuesday will bring forth is uncertain, but Walter has been informed one permit for $60,000 will be issued Monday.

CHARGES WALTON
WON'T PAY DEBTBixby Man Angry at Mayor for Not Paying for Use of Tractor

The sincerity of J. C. Walton's tearful outpouring over the work of what he terms "the poor farmer" is badly shaken by an affidavit of Dave C. Ray, a farmer living near Bixby, who states he has waited more than two years for Walton's engineering firm to pay him for the use of his tractor while the Bixby waterworks project was being carried out.

Ray advises most of his letters to the McIntosh-Walton Engineering company demanding payment of this bill have been ignored, and that the two replies received from the construction foreman announced with finality that the money will not be forthcoming.

Another affidavit from Bixby is signed by Lee Newlin, member of the city council in 1920, who swore before a notary public that a representative of Walton's firm "asked me for my price to use my influence in securing this contract for his concern." Newlin's reply was that Walton "has certainly trimmed this town enough already and there is no chance for your firm to secure this contract at any price, so far as I am concerned."

If these affidavits represent the sentiment toward Walton in Bixby, the candidate's engineering firm evidently left a trail of complaint, dissatisfaction and regret in that town before moving to another location.

Ray's affidavit about the unpaid tractor bill reads as follows:

"I, Dave Ray, a farmer residing near Bixby, Okla., make the following statement: During the months of February and March, 1920, I rented to the McIntosh-Walton Engineering company of Oklahoma City my tractor engine which has been used while this firm was engaged in installing a sewer and water system in the town of Bixby.

"The rent due me for the use of said engine is $12.25. I repeatedly requested payment of this debt. My letters to the company have been ignored, and I have been forced to pay for the use of the engine with the exception of two letters which I received from the construction foreman in which he stated that the firm would not pay this debt.

"I am a life-long democrat and a farmer, and give this statement to the public in the hope that the public will know the business record of this company. John Calaway Walton is now a candidate for governor of the state of Oklahoma.

"I had a suit prepared and would have filed it and served papers on Walton had he appeared here during the campaign. He was advertised to appear in Bixby, make a speech, but canceled his engagement.

Following is Newlin's affidavit concerning the offer of a bribe:

"I, Lee Newlin, a member of the city council of Bixby during the spring of 1920, when we were getting estimates on the contract to install a sewer and water system of the town of Bixby was approached by a man named Richards, representative of the McIntosh-Walton Engineering company of Oklahoma City. He asked me my price to use my influence in securing this contract for this concern. My answer was as follows: The McIntosh-Walton Engineering company has certainly trimmed this town enough already and there is no possible chance for your firm to secure this contract at any price, so far as I am concerned.

"I am a registered independent voter, citizen of Bixby, Okla., for twenty-two years and give this statement to the public in the interests of good government. I am John Calaway Walton of this town is now offering himself for governor of the state of Oklahoma. I believe it is my patriotic duty to inform the voters of the state of Oklahoma before election day."

Gov. Harry I. Davis, recovering at the seaside from an illness, sent word that next week he would return to this state and take a platform to reply to the savage attacks on his administration by former Gov. James M. Cox at a meeting at Cambridge and to meet the criticism of the democratic party.

Gov. James M. Cox at a meeting at Cambridge and to meet the criticism of the democratic party. This year seems so popular in politics. This determination of the chief executive to defend his doings and in turn to make comparison with the success of his predecessor has stirred the thousands of republican state employees to energy of movement and action.

The climax of the week's campaign was reached at the public meeting, where Col. Carmi A. Thompson, the governorship nominee and Representative Simeon D. Fess, the senatorial candidate, met 1,000 members of the Tulsa county republican organization, 200 of them women, and heard the eloquent plea of the veteran commander, National Committee member Rudolph Hynicka, for extraordinary effort on their behalf. In the republican state primary both showed weakness. Fess especially falling behind the majority achieved by former Senator Charles W. Dick, former Lieut. Gov. John H. Arnold and David Wesley Wood. This was due to the opposition of the liberal republicans. Fess having come to them advertised as the selection of the leaders of the Anti-Saloon league. Since then there have been indications that members of the business community were leaning toward Senator Allen Pomeroy, who was accorded a satisfying reception here by them.

In his address to the Hynicka begged the workers to impress upon the voters that republican defeat through apathy or differences as to

National, State Woman's Club Heads
To Be Tulsa's Guests on November 3

Mrs. William N. Silh.

Mrs. J. R. Frazier.

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter.

Tulsa will have as its guest on Friday, November 3, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of Minneapolis, Minn., president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who will speak before them in the First Christian church, then in the city hall, at which time the public is invited to be present.

Mrs. Winter, as the executive head of America's largest organization of women, is a very striking personality and is accomplishing much for the organization by this personal touch with women of every state. She claims not to be a president at a distance, but wants to touch the hand and exchange smiles and words with her fellow workers.

Mrs. Winter says the place of club women is one most important as before them in the First Christian church, then in the city hall, at which time the public is invited to be present.

At the close of her address on Friday afternoon, there will be an informal reception held in her honor.

and at 6:30 o'clock the Tulsa federated clubs will entertain at dinner for Mrs. Winter, hundreds of women to be in attendance, the event to be held in the crypt of Trinity Episcopal church, Mrs. William N. Silh of this city, who is a member of the Oklahoma Federation of Executive Board, will be hostess in charge. Mrs. J. R. Frazier of Wilburton, Okla., president of the Oklahoma Federation of Women's Clubs, and who is responsible for this visit of Mrs. Winter to Tulsa, will also be a distinguished guest of honor.

Ohio Campaign Sets Record
For G.O.P. Thoroughness

Every Part of State Covered by Workers; Every Possible Issue Is Being Met; President's Praise for Congress Heartens All Nominees.

By JAMES W. FAULKNER
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 28.—Evidently remembering the old adage that it was "because of a nail a shoe was lost, because of a battle a kingdom was lost," the State republican campaign organization has begun an intensive drive the like of which Ohio has not witnessed for many decades in the so-called "off years" in politics.

There is no point not covered in the general advance. Every conceivable issue under discussion has been met, from the league of nations down to state taxation. President Harding, having the concern of an Ohio citizen for the outcome of the contest in his home, led the way before a notable public that a representative of Walton's firm "asked me for my price to use my influence in securing this contract for his concern." Newlin's reply was that Walton "has certainly trimmed this town enough already and there is no chance for your firm to secure this contract at any price, so far as I am concerned."

If these affidavits represent the sentiment toward Walton in Bixby, the candidate's engineering firm evidently left a trail of complaint, dissatisfaction and regret in that town before moving to another location.

This determination of the chief executive to defend his doings and in turn to make comparison with the success of his predecessor has stirred the thousands of republican state employees to energy of movement and action.

The climax of the week's campaign was reached at the public meeting, where Col. Carmi A. Thompson, the governorship nominee and Representative Simeon D. Since then there have been indications that members of the business community were leaning toward Senator Allen Pomeroy, who was accorded a satisfying reception here by them.

In his address to the Hynicka begged the workers to impress upon the voters that republican defeat through apathy or differences as to prohibition meant the turning over of the government to Wilsonism. This was indorsed by Representative Nicholas Longworth. Following them, Representative Fess made a most remarkable speech, in which he evoked the greatest enthusiasm and said to have won the support of hundreds of the workers who came to the meeting predisposed to give him only perfunctory courtesies.

Reports since the event are that this affair is bearing rich fruits. The national committee man, who came from New York to preside, will remain for a time and assist in perfecting the organization. Perfection today are for a normal Hamilton county majority, which means a loss of hope for the democrats, who are figuring upon the advertised disaffection.

Five members of the cabinet have entered the fighting during the week, the first being Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who is reported having made a profound impression by his demand for the abolition of the railway labor board and the return to unobstructed negotiations between the railway workers and the executives. At Washington Court House, the home of the railway labor board, the Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace made an exposition of affairs as they concern the farmers, pointing out what had already been accomplished in the way of tariff protection and financial relief and what was being undertaken for the future. More rugged and direct, Postmaster-General Hubert Work, at Akron, asserted that the issue between the parties was one of law and order, defining it as the necessity of supporting the eighteenth amendment and the right of the individual citizen to seek and be protected in a job. In his address he likened Wilson to the Kaiser Wilhelm and declared that during the war both ruled their countries as autocrats. The former president was also denounced for listening to the demands for class legislation, in the granting of which the rights of others were ignored and flouted.

Daugherty Meets Enemies.
Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, at Toledo, recited what had been done in the matter of cleaning out the wreckage of war, the installation of the budget system, the return of public utilities to their owners, the numerous economies enforced, the enactment of an adjustable tariff and the reforms instituted for agriculture. He declared that President Harding was entitled to two United States senators from Ohio to support his policies.

Fighting and aggressive, Atty.-Gen. Harry M. Daugherty, "the Sherdens," then in Cleveland, his enemies at Canton and gave no apologetic account of his performance at the capital. Quite the contrary! He carried the battle to the other side of the forum. Two weeks ago the Ohio State Federation of Labor held its annual convention at Canton and there were rumors that a request had gone to the republican state committee to advise the attorney-general to speak elsewhere. If this had any foundation it will be seen that Daugherty defied the convention and entered the lion's den, so to speak.

In addition to these larger guns, in every congressional district the nominees have espoused offensive tactics. Representative Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland displaying some of this spirit by climbing down from a surgeon's operating table and deferring treatment by the knife until after the campaign was ended, although his own election is assured. Nowhere is the fighting harder than in the normally democratic districts, which were won by the republicans in a single session has been made. Indeed, the larger the old democratic majority the stiffer the resistance that is being put up.

In a general way and as a part of regaining or holding the reported disaffected business men, there was put out this week a letter addressed to Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France, then in Cleveland, by John E. Galvin of Lima, president of a steel foundry company, having plants in several Ohio cities, giving reasons why they should abandon their intention of voting for United States Senator Allen Pomeroy and support Representative Simeon D. Fess instead. In this communication the writer, a direct steamship porting the labor and farmer exemption clause of the Clayton act, for voting for the passage of the Adamson eight-hour railway bill and for his stand on the excess profits tax repeal and lowering of the surtax on incomes. This appeal is being sent especially to all the members of Ohio's business, banking and manufacturing community.

It must not be supposed that the democrats are not realizing the danger to their cause in the acceptance of the changes to debate the ratification of the league of nations treaty, they have refused the proffered challenge of Representative Fess and Colonel Thompson to submit it to the voters. Wherever heckled, former Auditor Donahoe

FATHER AND SON
WEEK SET ASIDEChurch Dinners to Be Big Feature of Program
Planned by Y

"Hey, Dad! I want to make a date with you for the father and son dinner!"

Tulsa fathers will soon be hearing this summons from their sons for Father and Son week in just ahead, November 13 to 19. The week is one that is observed nationally and plans are being rapidly completed for the city-wide recognition of it with churches, civic clubs, the Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts and city schools sharing in the work program.

Plans are being formulated under the direction of the interchurch boys work commission made up of a group of laymen of the Tulsa churches. On the executive committee of this commission are A. W. Despres of the First Christian church, chairman, Judge J. N. Gubser of the Centenary Methodist church, first vice president, Philip Grimes of the First Methodist church, second vice president, George C. Goller of Trinity Episcopal church, secretary, and C. W. Blakely, boys' work director of the Y. M. C. A., executive secretary and advisor.

The week's schedule will include father and son addresses before the civic clubs, in the public schools, in fraternal lodges and culminates in a series of sermons by Tulsa pastors on Sunday, November 19. The big event of the mid-week program will be the father and son dinner which will be held simultaneously in the various churches Thursday evening, November 16.

The executive committee will meet Monday afternoon, tomorrow, and each Monday thereafter until November 13, from 5:15 to 6 o'clock in room A at the Y to complete arrangements.

The father and son movement originated in Cleveland, Ohio, with Robert E. Lewis, who was general Y secretary. Its threefold purpose is to develop in sons a proper sense of reverence and respect for their fathers, to lead fathers to renew their interest in the welfare and activities of their sons and to develop in both fathers and sons a bond of mutual trust, comradeship and understanding.

GETTING BACK AT
U. S. DRY LEADERSFrance Raising Fund to Fight Dry Law in America

PARIS, Oct. 28.—A large fund reaching many millions of francs has been pledged by the wine interest of Europe to make a "merciless" campaign against prohibition in the United States and other countries. The fund will be waged throughout the world organized in international league against prohibition with headquarters here.

Gauche Bertrand de Mun, president of the new anti-prohibitionist international organization, is president of one of the largest champagne companies in France, and was formerly an extensive exporter to the United States.

The American campaign will be carried on in co-operation with the liquor forces of the United States, it was learned today.

Organizers of the league say their chief concern is to give every possible assistance to American wets, and rightly so. However, we believe our cause is as legitimate as that of the prohibitionists. American supporters of prohibition have taken the liberty of sending their spoils to Europe. We believe we have at least the right to offer our whole-hearted support to American wets, if they will accept. They will find our organization amply backed financially.
